

I would like to encourage the FCC to pass regulations to encourage the further deployment of BPL systems with due caution. I don't believe there is enough evidence to clearly demonstrate that interference to radio signals will be a problem. However, I believe the regulations should address limiting of interference, and the regulations should be provisional, if significant interference occurs that cannot be controlled, approval should be rescinded.